

Corner Cont.

Penance in itself is necessary for salvation: "For unless you shall do penance, you shall all likewise perish." (Luke 13:3). This penance is more than just being sorry for the sins, but correcting that life. In the words of St. Paul "But I chastise my body, and bring it into subjection: lest perhaps, when I have preached to others, I myself should become a castaway." (1 Cor. 9:27).

To be clear, we do not sin if we only perform the minimum required: abstinence from meat on Fridays and fasting on Ash Wednesday and Good Friday. However, we will need to do some penance if we wish to save our souls. And according to the Spirit of the Law, all 40 days of Lent should be penitential days where we do some kind of penance. Remember, the Church would relax the fast on Sundays and Holy Days in order to support our human nature lest the fast take too much of a toll on us. But no meat until Easter. While you do not sin if you use Sundays and Holy Days as "cheat days" for your Lenten resolution, remember: Our Lord did not take snacks during those 40 days in the desert.

In Christ through Mary,

Fr. David Franco, FSSP

Pastor's Corner

Dear Parishioners,

Now that we are 10 days into Lent, we are 25% finished. Hopefully, you have been able to keep your Lenten resolution intact and are growing in grace and holiness. But let's face it, if we picked the thing we needed to give up, our fallen nature will constantly tempt us to "dispense" ourselves. Around this time of year, we priests get plenty of questions like "Is it a sin if I break my Lenten resolution?" or "Am I allowed to do X on Sundays and feast days?"

First of all, what exactly is a Lenten resolution? It is a free decision to give up something licit or take on additional practices (getting to bed on time, Holy Hour of Adoration, etc). The key word here is free: you are not obliged under pain of sin to choose this specific penance. If after several days you realize you bit off more than you can chew, then it is possible to modify or even change that discipline to something else. For example, if you gave up coffee for Lent, you might get crippling headaches which prevent you from performing your duties at work. True, these will eventually pass once you get all that caffeine out of your system, but you can't call in sick to work just because you voluntarily took on this penance. Perhaps you might start by limiting yourself to one cup a day, then decreasing that to half a cup, etc. achieving complete freedom from caffeine addiction by Holy Week.

Next, we need to consider why we do these penances in the first place. As mentioned previously in a sermon, the Lenten discipline from Apostolic times until very recently consisted in complete abstinence from all meat for the full 40 days as well as fasting every day except Sundays and Holy Days. The abstinence used to include not only meat, but also dairy products such as milk and cheese as well as eggs. [Sarcasm alert] Since modern man suffers far harsher living conditions with physically exhausting bodily labor than any other generation including the Middle Ages, we have had to dramatically cut down these obligations to essentially nothing. [End sarcasm]
