the Military Archdiocese. Not only did he attend the Mass in choir, but also walked with us for both Saturday and Sunday. It is not every day you see a prince of the Church hearing confessions, walking alongside us, and sometimes even taking turns carrying one of the banners!

We arrived at the end of Saturday at the farm of one of the pilgrimage organizers. After all that penance, it was good to finally rest. That evening, we had the much-anticipated talent show. There were skits, violins, and even the bagpipes! It was a full day.

Did you know roosters get up and start singing at 4:20am? At least they did at this farm. Sunday was another early day, but it was the final stretch before the end. You could tell people were hurting, but the end was in sight. Almost there.

It is hard to describe what goes through your mind when you enter the Church after 60 miles of walking. If the singing was impressive at the beginning of the march, it was even more beautiful with the acoustics inside the Church. The final Mass was packed: over 500 people in attendance. The choir sang like angels. If the end of a pilgrimage brings this much joy, imagine what Heaven will be like.

In Christ, through Mary,

Fr. David Franco, FSSP

Pastor’s Corner

Salvete!

As I mentioned a few Sundays ago, I went on the pilgrimage in Pennsylvania. Here is a summary for those interested, especially if you are thinking of going next year.

I drove up Thursday and offered the travelers’ Mass out in the field. Although we had severe thunderstorms and flooding throughout Pennsylvania that day, God mercifully cleared up everything in time for our arrival. The red vestments for the Mass of Pope St. Linus (first Pope after St. Peter) turned an even deeper shade of red in the setting sun. A fitting end to the day.

Friday was the first official day of the pilgrimage. I was the celebrant for the Solemn High Mass for Ember Friday. Once Mass was finished, we had breakfast and took care of some last minute preparations. The destination was Immaculate Conception Parish in Allentown some 60 miles away. It was founded by St. John Neumann in 1857 and later dedicated as the nation shrine of Our Lady of Guadalupe. Once everyone was ready, we assembled together, blessed the banners and started walking. It was impressive to see hundreds of pilgrims singing at the top of their lungs, banners fluttering in the gentle Pennsylvania breeze as the column wound through the cornfields and farmland.

The support crews for the pilgrimage were very impressive. We had a registered nurse tend to the wounded and “dying.” A group of young ladies (a.k.a. the “Water Lilies”) handed out water bottles to the pilgrims throughout the trail. A truck with Porta-Potties strapped to a trailer would park on the side of the road to give much needed relief to well-hydrated pilgrims. Most importantly, the vans (a.k.a. “rides of shame”) came to the help of the weary pilgrim to either give a temporary break or carry them the rest of the way to the campsite.

Towards the end of the day, we met the “stroller brigade” with the small children and older pilgrims who cannot walk the whole day. They joined us for the final stretch. We arrived that evening at a Mennonite family’s farm and pitched our tents in one of their fields.

Saturday started dark and early at 5:30am with a Solemn High Mass for Ember Saturday. This time, we had a bishop join us: his excellency Joseph Coffey of
