

Corner Cont.

Blessed Sacrament, and it would be all right. St Ignatius knew where to go to regain his peace. He knew he had to re-anchor himself in Faith in Christ, Hope in Christ and love for Christ.

The Venerable Francois-Marie Jacob Libermann, Jewish convert and Priest, co-founder of the Holy Ghost Fathers wrote: "The sight of our incapacity and our nullity ought to be for us a great source of peace, by convincing us that God Himself will go to work [in order get us to heaven]. He knows our poverty and misery better than we do ourselves. Our extreme misery and abomination make it absolutely necessary for us to have continual recourse to God, to remain united to Him at every moment, in all the circumstances of our life, to depend on Him." "We need only to keep ourselves peacefully united to God and to watch quietly over ourselves," that is Fr. Libermann's solution, to put things into perspective, based on Who God is. "A soul maintaining itself in peace, no matter the situation, is in tune with the promptings of the Holy Ghost. The Holy Ghost will lead it, and will never abandon it. A soul who loses its peace should put everything in motion to recover it."

May we foster, as much as we can, security in Our Lord. May we have our non-negotiables where daily we exercise and renew our faith in Him, our hope in Him and our love for Him.

Please know that you and your families are in my prayers, especially at the Altar of Our Lord.

Pastor's Corner

Dear Faithful,

Last week the sermon was about peace, what it is, what it implies, how to keep it and how to regain it if we have lost it. We all need reminders, in these worrisome times, to stay firmly rooted in Christ, the Prince of Peace. Here are parts of the sermon which I was told were helpful:

St. Thomas Aquinas defines peace as: "The tranquility of order, particularly in the will." Let's take that apart: What is tranquility? -The absence of disturbance which rests upon order. What is order? -The regular convergence/the coming together of means to reach an end. And in his definition, he says "particularly in the will," so St. Thomas is saying that peace is first and foremost an interior disposition before it can bear fruit exteriorly; "in the will" implies that we have a part to play in it, we have to correspond and do something regarding it.

We all have had the experience of a chaotic place. There is no structure, it's messy, it's confused. It's hard to even think. It's chaos and disorder. There is no organizing of means to reach an end, we can't even think of what the end is! It's a circus. There is noise. It's a free for all; it's the rule of passions and appetites over reason. It's a nightmare. Now imagine walking around with such chaos in our souls.

Thankfully, enters Christ Our Lord, the Prince of Peace. He is the Only One who can give and establish tranquility of order in our souls. Upon leaving the apostles, He bestowed on them His gift: "I leave you peace, my peace I give to you." They were each going to their violent deaths but they had this gift inside of them. They were secure in their Savior. Interior peace is a result of security in Jesus. Faith in Him, the Hope He gives us that we can be eternally happy, and the discovering of His Love. We see in the lives of the apostles and in the lives of the Saints how that peace can be shaken up, how they underwent such severe trials. But they were masters at preserving that peace. And if they had lost it, they were masters at recovering it.

I'm sure you've heard the story of St. Ignatius of Loyola who was asked if he'd lose his peace if his order, the Society of Jesus was suppressed. He said yes, but then he'd need a quarter of an hour before the
